Paint

Paint repair underway in the South shaft at El. 53 to 71.0m. The CCC painters are at elevation 71 because once they pulled the airlines through the shaft, it was not long enough to get past this location. Therefore, they camped at this elevation and will work their way down the South shaft. There has not been much headways made here either as the painters continue with the grinding of the rusted steel for the most part. For more details on the painting operation, please refer to Stuart Ross' report.
